

What if I am a minor?

Persons under the age of 18 are considered minors under the law. A minor's residence is presumed to be the same as his/her parents' or legal guardian's. The residence decision for students under 18 is based upon the legal residence of the parents or legal guardian. In the event that a non-custodial parent is a legal resident of New Mexico, the minor student will be classified as a resident.

You must be at least 19 years old to establish residency apart from your parents or guardians. With the sole exception of automatic legal emancipation upon marriage, a minor is presumed to share his parents' or legal guardian's residence, unless the minor presents to the appropriate institution official written evidence sufficient to justify (as a conclusion of law) a finding of the minor's emancipation.

Frequently Asked Questions

- 1. How is the residency status determined for my parent or guardian when my classification depends upon my parent or guardians residence?
The residency status of a parent or guardian is determined according to the same requirements outlined for individuals in this brochure.
- 2. Are there any programs I might be participating in that have special restrictions concerning residency eligibility? Yes. Students participating in tuition reciprocity, WRGP or WICHE student exchange programs are ineligible to establish residency. Students may not begin to establish residency until after discontinuing any of these programs.
- 3. What if I am not a U.S. citizen? Immigrants, refugees, and international students, who are lawfully in the U.S., have obtained permanent status from the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), or non-citizens serving active duty in the armed forces of the U.S may establish residency for tuition purposes. Any non-citizen entering an institution of higher education on a non-immigrant visa

(i.e. student, diplomatic, visitor, or visiting scholar), including spouses and dependents, are classified as non-residents.

- 4. Must all these requirements be met before the semester starts in order to qualify for resident tuition that semester? Yes. Petitions for resident status will not be approved unless all requirements are met before the first day of classes for that term. Until you are officially classified as a resident, you must proceed as a non-resident. Tuition and fees must be paid on time at the non-resident rates.
- 5. If I fail to petition and I am charged non-resident tuition after I am eligible for a change of status, can I receive a refund of the difference between non-resident and resident tuition retroactive to the date I was eligible? No. It is the student's responsibility to petition for a change of resident status. By not petitioning, you waive your right to recover the difference.
- 6. Can I lose my classification as a resident and be reclassified as a non-resident? Yes. You can lose your status in the following two ways: 1) acting to establish legal residence in another state or 2) the institution finds that resident status was granted on the basis of false or misleading information.

To qualify for New Mexico residency for tuition purposes you must:

This brochure has been provided to assist you in understanding residency law for tuition purposes, as defined by the New Mexico Higher Education Department, [NMSA 1978, Section 21-1-4].

Residency for tuition purposes is determined at the time of admission.

If you are a non-resident you may apply for residency by obtaining a "Petition for Resident Tuition Classification" from the appropriate institutional office. The form should be completed and returned to the institution, along with appropriate documentation listed in this brochure. A change in residency classification is never automatic and it is always the student's responsibility to initiate the process.

Once a petition has been submitted, the petition is reviewed and a decision is made by the institution.

If you are denied residency, you may amend your petition with additional information in support of your cause. If the amended petition is denied, you may appeal to the institution's board of appeals for residency.

While requirements for residency must be completed before the first day of the term or the institutions census date, the deadline for a petition for residency is the institutions census date. A petition received after this date will not be considered. Check with your institution for deadlines.

The full residency for tuition purposes policy is available at <http://hed.state.nm.us> or contact your institution for more information.

All persons, regardless of immigration status, who have attended a secondary educational institution in New Mexico for at least one year and who have either graduated from a New Mexico high school or received a high school equivalency credential in New Mexico shall be eligible for resident tuition rates and state funded financial aid. Regardless of immigration status.
